

WHAT IS ECOSOCIALISM?

Capitalism's endless drive for growth is destroying our planet. Ecosocialism offers a new way of thinking about the relationship between economics and the environment. It critiques both capitalism and traditional socialism for emphasising production regardless of the ecological cost.

Ecosocialists argue that to tackle the environmental crisis, we need a radical shift away from consumerism and profit-driven production. We must replace our current economic system with one based on democratic planning, prioritising sustainability and usefulness over profitability.

An ecosocialist strategy involves:

- Fighting within trade unions to transition away from harmful industries.
- Expanding public services to reduce reliance on individual consumption.
- Building an economy where production is guided by usefulness, durability, and ethical working conditions.
- Fostering international co-operation to end the exploitation of poorer nations.
- Opposing eco-fascism and conspiracy theories that undermine climate action.

This vision requires a mass movement and a fight for political change to dismantle the capitalist system. Anti ★ Capitalist Resistance is helping to build a new ecosocialist network. We believe that the current social movement around climate politics is not enough, and that we need a more radical approach that tackles the root causes of the problem.

The network is planning to launch an ecosocialist journal, host regular educational events, and hold another conference later in 2024.

Extreme inequality is out of control. There are more billionaires than ever before.

Meanwhile, the world's poorest get even poorer as governments bail out private corporations and cut back on education and health. This is no accident, and it isn't just the result of greed. It is built into the logic of capitalism, a system built on profit and exploitation of people and planet.

Change is urgent.

We need a mass movement to win victories for democracy and social, climate, and economic justice. We must organise for action now, but also for system change.
